UPROAR CAUSES ADJOURNMENT OF HEARINGS

Charges and Counter Charges Bring Heated Close to Yesterday's Continuation of Testimony

MERCHANTS OBJECT

Say Law Would Give Commission Right to Examine All Books, Including Secret Formulas

Albany, Feb. 14.—Frenzied denial by representatives of New York city labor unions that conditions within their organizations were such as to make state regulation vitally necessary threw the senate chamber into an uproar today and brought to an abrupt close the continuation of yesterday's hearing on legislation recommended by the Lockwood housing committee, intended to provide a state trades commission.

Representatives of the unions, called upon by James S. Holland, president of the State Federation of Labor, opened a vigorous attack on alleged findings of the Lockwood committee, submitted by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee, as reasons for the enactment of regulatory legislation.

Mr. Untermyer quoted from the records of the committee's investigation admissions by Samuel Gompers that "repressive and despotic" conditions existed in the unions and that the American Federation of Labor, or "any one else" was without power to regulate them.

Those admissions, he contended, bore out his charges that the unions so generally abused the special dispensation granted them by law to organize as a class for their own protection, that a trades commission with power to regulate admitted abuses within the unions was a vital necessity in the best interest of the public and the unions themselves.

Denial of those charges by James Collier and Thomas Clarke, representing New York unions, became so heated that labor advocates in all parts of the chamber leaped to their feet and hurled counter charges and retorts at Mr. Untermyer.

Speaking in defense of the measure, where the opposition left late last night, he declared the right of labor to unite as a class was a special dispensation granted to them under the law, the same right being denied to employers. Admitted abuses within the unions, however, were working against their best interest, he said, and some regulatory power is required to keep their actions within the bounds of reason. Regulation of unions would prove a boon to the building industry, he asserted.

DISCLOSE UNBELIEVABLE CONDITIONS.

Investigation by the Lockwood committee disclosed unbelievable conditions in unions, Mr. Untermyer said. He charged their practice of limiting their membership to only a small proportion of the available craftsmen and forcing unreasonable demands upon employers with being one of the greatest factors in the high cost of building. The condition, if permitted to go on, he said, would lead ultimately to a state of civil war.

Opposition to the trades commission is indeed practically every big trade association in the state. James Morrison, of the Merchants' Association of New York, led the attack on the bill intended to erode the commission's jurisdiction to delegate the powers of inquisition even given to it by the history of the world.

Under provisions of the measure, he said, the commission or any clerk delegated by it could enter the offices of any business concern and examine all their books, even their secret formulas. No business would be beyond its jurisdiction, he declared.

The results obtained by the Lockwood committee's prosecution of trade and labor combinations, he said, proved that the present laws were sufficiently powerful to regulate such organizations, nothing more than an investigation large enough to permit the attorney general's office to carry on the prosecution along the same lines followed by the Lockwood committee, was necessary to keep down corruption.

In answer to his arguments, Mr. Untermyer said the present statutes "had closed letters," the character of which was being such that only a committee expressly created to seek out and prosecute such combinations could succeed in suppressing them.

The work of the commission would have during its first years of action, cloaking themselves under cover of a legitimate trade association, learned the state really intended to prosecute, they would soon abandon their plans. Already, he added, old combinations which were broken up by the Lockwood committee were poised ready to spring at the throat of the public as soon as the committee should become powerless to control them.

"Even in the capital some mysterious power was at work preventing printing and distribution of the final report of the committee," he said.

Albert Balow, attorney for the miners' association, admitted yesterday after examination by Mr. Untermyer, assistant attorney general of New York, that many of his reports, as agent of the Barnes and Tidewater agencies were false.

In answer to a deposition being taken by Mr. Walsh, attorney for the miners' association, before examination by Mr. Untermyer, he had pictured the communists as Communists labor parties and the I. W. W. organization as being controlled by the two depositions and operated as side lines to extracting money from banks and business concerns.

He charged that he and other members of the two depositions were organized labor unions and their organizations and direct but this the miners' denied.

BUSINESS OF THE CHURCHES

It was an eloquent and also a rational plea that ex-Father Lloyd George made the other day to a council representing a large group of British churches.

"I speak as one who has had something to do with war," he said, "and had to make a close study of it. During the war the cry was 'Never Again.' There is a growing assumption that a conflict is coming again sooner or later. That is the business of the churches."

"What do I mean by that? Nations are building up armaments—I will not say nations that did not exist, but nations that have been submerged, buried—are building up new armaments. You have national antipathies, national fears, suspicions, dislike, ambition fostered and exaggerated."

"You have more than that. Keep your eye on what is happening. They are constructing more terrible machines than the late war ever saw. What for? Not for peace. What are they for? They are not even to dispense armies. They are to attack cities unarmed, where you have defenseless populations, to kill, to maim, to poison, to mutilate, to burn helpless women and children."

"If the churches of Christ throughout Europe and America allow that to fructify they had better close their doors. The next war, if it ever comes, will be a war on civilization itself."

"Everything depends on the temper, the spirit which is created throughout the world, and it would be a sad thing, a sad danger, to the people if the world came to the conclusion that Christianity, despite all its principles, in spite of all its ideals, was perfectly impotent to prevent mischief of that kind."

"No man in the world is better fitted, by experience and position, to give this warning. And the task of preventing another and greater war is indeed, as he suggests, the business of the church more than of any other human organization. There can be no peace on earth until there is a real will to men, and peace among nations must be first established in man's hearts."

HONESTY IN CALIFORNIA

An effort is on foot in California to have all products, natural or manufactured under the name "California," comply with the highest standards of honesty and quality. It is an effort which dignifies all those taking part in it.

There is no question of the growth of honesty in business everywhere. It is accepted as the best policy, and, more than that, it is acknowledged as a moral principle worthy observance by an enlightened people.

Away back in the good old days a proud New England commonwealth came to unfortunate renown as "the home of the wooden nutmeg." In the time of its coinage the name was worn jauntily as a tribute to native shrewdness. Today the people of that very state would be in the forefront in acknowledging that the California path to commercial fame was the more desirable. So the world grows better, in spite of pessimists and their dark predictions.

The descriptions are given as follows:

$10 Federal Reserve Note.—On the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago; check letter "A"; Carter Glass, secretary of the treasury; John Burke, treasurer of the United States; portrait of Jackson.

This counterfeit appears to have been printed from very crudely zinc-etched plates on two pieces of paper between which silk threads have been distributed. The work is so poor, that it should be immediately detected.

$20 Federal Reserve Note.—On the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; check letter "A"; A. W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury; Frank White, treasurer of the United States; portrait of Cleveland.

This note appears to have been printed from a wood or other hand-engraved plate on two pieces of paper between which a few pieces of coarse red and blue silk threads have been distributed. It is purely the work of an amateur. The bill is very crude, and should not deceive any one accustomed to handling money.

Fraternal Free Masons.

Rome, Feb. 14.—The reception of the Fraternal grand council's barring Italian Free Masons from membership, is effective immediately, it was announced today.

A resolution was adopted last night declaring that as Italian Free Masons hold principles opposite to those of the Fraternal, members must choose between the two organizations.

Premier Mussolini presided at the meeting.

Free Masonry in Italy is different from that in other countries, having political features. It was explained that the doctrine was not directed at Free Masonry as world-wide organization, but only against the groups so likely that violates their membership for political purposes.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY

The fight on the Opium Traffic. This resolution introduced by Chairman Stephen G. Porter of the house foreign affairs committee, requesting President Harding to call an international conference to deal with worldwide limitation of the production of opium, offers American influence opportunity to accomplish something that the opium advisory council of the League of Nations seems destined to fail. A resolution for restriction of the cultivation of the poppy, contained in the League by representatives of India, will, it is felt, bring large revenues from the opium traffic in a manner largely to nullify it. —Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Better Paid Diplomats.

When former Ambassador John W. Davis testified before the house committee on foreign affairs that he spent forty thousand or sixty thousand dollars a year to represent the United States at the Court of St. James' he bore witness to the high cost of foreign service. The demands made upon diplomatic representatives of all ranks are so much in excess of their pay that the government that all but the wealthy are virtually excluded from entering the service.—[New York Tribune.]

British Boxer Indemnity Renounced.

In deciding to renounce what remains due to them of the Boxer indemnity, the British are following an example set by the United States in 1905 when, at the instance of President Roosevelt this country returned to China ten million dollars which had been paid to it by the Chinese government on Boxer indemnity account. This remittance was made upon the sole condition that the money should be used to prepare young Chinese pupils at the Boxer indemnity college in Pekin for admission to American universities. —[Philadelphia Inquirer.]

Budget in Peril.

Something more than a saving of $20,000,000 is involved in the quite general criticism expressed by Republicans as well as by Democratic newspapers over the action of congress in increasing the rivers and harbors appropriation beyond the sum of $27,000,000 recommended in the budget. The integrity of the budget system is at stake. The house made the increase from $27,000,000 to $36,000,000 in the first place. In the Senate Mr. Borah offered an amendment to reduce the sum to the amount recommended in the budget, but the amendment was defeated. Thus both branches of congress are on record as favoring the higher amount.—[Wilkes-Barre Record.]

REMEMBER THE MAINE!

Shaking of American Warship, One Cause of Spanish-American War, Occurred Twenty-Five Years Ago Tonight—Tragedy of Much Local Interest.

Twenty-five years ago tonight the United States battleship Maine at anchor in Havana harbor to protest the interests of America in Cuba, was blown up with loss of 260 lives. Responsibility for the disaster has never been fixed but it was assumed that the Spaniard was responsible and that the Spaniard was responsible for the wave of indignation and horror that swept the country and for the heavy measure responsible for the subsequent declaration of war upon Spain. "Remember the Maine" became a cry that would not down and that sent thousands of young Americans, including numerous Oneontans, to the colors.

The commanding officer of the ill-fated ship was Captain Charles D. Sigsbee, now a retired admiral. Captain Sigsbee was a son of Nicholas Sigsbee of Otego, Otsego county, a man well remembered by many now living. Despite the intense confusion of the moment, Captain Sigsbee kept his head and his telegram to the navy department reporting the disaster and pleading for a suspension of public opinion until responsibility could be placed is said to have elicited the statement from President McKinley that God should be praised that such a man was at Havana.

Among the members of the Maine's crew was Ambrose Ham, a son of Captain Ham, a brother of Mrs. Gen. Palmercock, both of Oneonta. For several days it was believed that he had gone down with the ship but word was last received by his frantic family that he had been landed, but slightly injured, at Key West.

The Maine was lying at anchor with most of the crew in their hammocks when the explosion occurred at 2:45 p.m. Many were killed by the explosion and others were drowned when the ship sank. Captain Sigsbee was the last man to leave the ship and his order for the survivors to quit the sinking vessel was given only after it appeared that their lives were in imminent danger.

An investigation by divers soon after the tragedy failed to discover the cause of the explosion. For years the body lay in the harbor with only its main mast and fighting top visible above the water. A few years ago a scaffold was built around the wreck and the water pumped out. Close investigation at that time failed satisfactorily to solve the mystery. The bulk was then towed out into the deep sea and sunk and the mast and crow's nest were taken to Arlington cemetery and erected as a memorial over the graves of the victims who had been buried there.

Girl Graduates Predicant.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 14.—Although more girls enter local schools each year, this invariably predominates in the graduation classes, an investigation of registration in the public schools disclosed. Figures for the last six years show a registration from 100 to 1,000 more boys than girls in the first grade, during the period, the figures for the same years of graduation classes give the girls a majority of more than 300 in the grade and 700 in the high schools.

"The girls have to go to work" is the chief explanation given for these circumstances by Chief Attendance Officer, G. Ann.

J. M. Henderson Taken Home.

James M. Henderson, who was driving his mother and other less active parties when his automobile was hit by a train on the C. & D. railroad early evening, has been removed from the Fox Memorial Hospital to his home at 415 Main street. He is making a good recovery.

REAL GOVERNMENT IN ITALY.
THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK: By the Grace of God, Fred and Joe Musolini Methods Planning to Average Citizens of Sunny Kingdom, Rome, Feb. 14.—"It's a real government," is the way the average Italian sums up his opinion of the new administration of Premier Mussolini.

While he may not be a Fascist inclined, yet after recounting the many vicissitudes which the various Italian governments have suffered since the armistice, the Italian on the street complacently goes to his tasks and rejoices that, at last, there is one government in power which has a policy, and is free from bickering and maneuvering for votes in parliament in order to hold its own.

The bold front which Premier Mussolini and his cabinet have presented in facing the problem of reducing the cumbersome bureaucracy of the state, with its army of state employees, has found joyous acceptance in the minds of the ordinary toiler, who sees there a chance for the reduction of the heavy taxes which now weigh on all classes. And when accounts are read in the newspapers of the long and tedious negotiations which the government is engaged in reforming all the departments of government, the general comment is, "after all, it is a government."

BUTCHER CASE DISMISSED.

Women know what they want

---and get it

A woman buys many different food products, dozens of fabrics and articles of apparel, shoes, things for the home, toilet preparations—quite probably in a year she makes a thousand purchases. Personally to judge the quality of each, she would need to be a chemist, an engineer, a metallurgist and a good many other things.

So, given the choice, of course she buys the goods she knows in preference to those she does not know. And she is going to have that choice for a good many years. She is boss.

Manufacturers who want to work for her must realize this:—They must put in their application at once; convince her of their intention and ability to give her merchandise of known value; and then live up to the standard.

For she is a just but ruthless boss. She neither forgets nor forgives. She rewards loyal service with loyalty, but her condemnation of broken faith is final.

Her favor is the sunlight of success; her indifference, the outer darkness.

GREAT RADIO DRAMAS

Greatest Audiences in World "Listen In," Mentally Constructing Scenery and Surroundings.

Every listener constructs his own scenery when the WGY players broadcast their weekly play from the Scheerney radio station of the General Electric company and the probabilities are that nearly everyone is seeing the play in a different setting. The listener hears a telegraph key, and the lines refer to a railroad station in a small village as in the case of the first act of "The Traveling Salesman." At once is created in the mind of every fan a picture of a railroad station and to him all the succeeding action denoted by the voices of the players takes place in the mind-picture of the listener.

In the radio drama only sound "atmosphere" is possible. Telephone bells, closing doors, thunder, an automobile horn, the whistle of a train or the whistle of the wind, the rattle of dishes or the rattle of a typewriter all help to convey pictures to the listeners and these pictures are made fully definite by the lines.

Players of radio drama are handicapped by the necessity of conveying all emotion by the voice, by intonation and shading. The real drama on the stage need not utter a word to express emotion; the clinching of the hand or the twisting of a handkerchief are stronger than words.

The radio audience of today gets his drama exactly as the blind man formerly "saw" the stage play, entirely through the ears but supplemented by imagination and experience. Radio drama is the direct opposite of motion pictures; the former depends upon sound, the latter upon sight. It is reasonable to expect that the growing popularity of the radio drama will result in a revival of interest in the spoken drama. After every play presented by WGY players the studio receives from 800 to 1,000 letters from radio fans, expressing appreciation and enjoyment. It is interesting to note that a great many of these letters come from those who have been the stage production of the broadcast plays.

TO THE STAR EDITOR:—The attorney general of the state of New York, Mr. George W. Wadsworth, on February 12, made a statement before the Legislature concerning the report of the commission for the revision of the laws of New York.

The attorney general observed for the meeting that the legislature had failed to provide for the revision of the laws.

QUITTED BY JURIES.

William Dart and Fred O'neill were found not guilty.

William Dart, 35 South Fifth street, Brooklyn, New York, a member of the 47th regiment, accepted the stocks of a gun which he had been charged to bring in to the 47th regiment. The day in question, he was tried on the charge of having a pistol in his pocket. Five minutes were spent in the trial. The jury in the 47th regiment voted guilty.

The attorney general on the second day of the trial, when it was alleged that the defense of "I didn't know" was passing the 47th regiment, said he had no objection. Dart and his lawyer agreed in a庭 of the 47th regiment at the front of the building.

Dart's defense was that he had been employed at the time he was accused to the 47th regiment.

HOSPITAL CARE OF VETERANS IS URGED

Governor Smith Commands Earnest Consideration of the Matter in Message to Legislature

Albany, Feb. 11.—A recommendation that the legislature give the subject of hospital care of veterans serious consideration "to the end that the state may to the best of its ability take care of these young men out of gratitude to Almighty God for the safe and sound return of so many American soldiers," was made in a message sent to the legislature today by Governor Alfred Smith.

The complete text of the message follows:

To the Legislature:

On January 1st, 1923, 1,194 soldiers who fought in the World war were under treatment in our state hospitals. Actually 217 were in state to their homes under parole. Of these 1,194 men, 573, or a little less than half, had their maintenance paid by the United States government. The remainder had been unable, in many cases, doubtless because of their inability to bear the temporary loss of their disability, to convince the Veterans Bureau that there was a direct connection between their war service and their condition. Officially, there seems to be a difference between the two groups as far as the attitude of the federal government is concerned. It seems not inconsistent in the slightest degree with the obligation of the state to all of these men, if the national government did make provision for the 573 men for whom it has already accepted responsibility, the state itself would still have to provide for the greater number. There is little probability that the federal government will quickly, if at all, enlarge its hospital facilities for the care of these men and this is a matter about which the people of the state should be very deeply concerned.

When the lack of government provision and the special need in New York state was brought to our attention by the Director of the bureau of war risk insurance in the summer of 1920, the legislature appropriated three million dollars for a special military hospital at Creedmoor. The act making the appropriation provided for a commission; that commission promptly appointed but the federal government failed to carry out its part of the agreement, legislation to that effect in Washington failed of passage and our own legislature subsequently reappropriated the money for the erection of a civil hospital at Creedmoor, which is now under construction. That means that ex-service men are spread out in the different hospitals of the state through no fault of ours, as we carried out our end of the agreement.

The failure of the federal government to cooperate with the state to bring relief to our suffering soldiers is due, I believe, to the fact that the number of men who have lost their minds by reason of military service has steadily increased. From April, 1921, to January, 1922, the increase has been eighty-one per cent and the proportion for whom maintenance is paid by the Veterans' Bureau has decreased.

The people of this state want to do every possible thing that they can for the young men who offered themselves to the country in her hour of need and who are now suffering from one of the most serious forms of all diseases. These men are all of the same age and nearly all are similarly afflicted. They should all be in one place where they could be made the objects of special treatment and not be spread out among the unfortunate wards of the state, many of whom, for past the possibility of recovery. We should make available at the earliest possible moment, a State Memorial Hospital into which the men can be collected and receive the best treatment that modern medical science can provide. The amount of money from the government will make it possible to install the best equipment for treatment.

By far the best provision existing in the state for ex-service men suffering from mental disorders is afforded by the buildings in Group III of the King's Park State Hospital, now set apart for beneficiaries of the government. On the first of January, 1923, there were 241 ex-service patients in that hospital. A unit for vocational training has been established there by the Veterans' Bureau. The surroundings are particularly comfortable and cheerful. No better special provision can be made in New York State for these men today, at a reasonable cost to the taxpayers. Immediate facilities at King's Park to meet the needs of all patients among ex-service men are now being planned, including the counties of New York, Orange, Kings, Suffolk, Nassau, Richmond, Westchester, Putnam, Dutchess, Rockland and Orange, and in fact, from other parts of the state, because I believe the obligation on the part of relatives to their transfer into institutions far from home will be overcome when the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be able to convince them that it is for the soldier's own good.

In the four hospitals that receive patients from the districts just mentioned, there were on January 1, 1923, 210 ex-service men, distributed as follows: King's Park State Hospital, Kings Park, 144; Manhattan State Hospital, Welfare Island, New York City, 26; Brooklyn State Hospital, Brooklyn, 11; Central Islip Hospital, Central Islip, Long Island, 72; and the New York State Hospital, Utica, 11. All these patients are on parole.

According to the King's Park Statute, the patients are to be taken care of at the expense of the state. This is to be supplied in the form of a sum to be paid monthly by the state, and the individual patient is to be given a sum to be used for his personal expenses.

I am greatly pleased on the receipt of the King's Park letter to learn that the defense of "I didn't know" was passed the 47th regiment.

As far as I know, the 47th regiment had no objection to the 47th regiment and the 47th regiment had no objection to the 47th regiment.

Some like it hot! Some like it cold!

But all rejoice, live long and prosper, and try it and see.
